

Personalized Science: Immunology, Neurobiology and Cancer

Thursday, May 31st, 2012

Mauno Koivisto Centre, BioCity, Turku

PROGRAM

8.45-9.00	Coffee
9.00-9.15	Opening words
9.15-10.00	William Paul , National Institutes of Health, USA: "Cytokines and CD4 T Cells: Dance Partners at the Immunology Ball"
10.00-10.45	Hans-Martin Jäck , University of Erlangen-Nürnberg, Germany: "RNA Controls B Cells"
10.45-11.00	Coffee and posters
11.00-11.45	David Nicholls , Buck Institute for Research on Aging, USA: "A butterfly flaps its wings in the Amazon: how a puzzling experiment started a scientific career"
11.45-12.30	Ana Teixeira , Karolinska Institutet, Sweden: "Engineering cellular microenvironments in development and cancer"
12.30-13.30	Lunch
13.30-14.15	Chris Hutchison , Durham University, UK: "The role of intermediate filament proteins in tumour progression"
14.15-15.00	Cayetano González , Institute for Research in Biomedicine, Spain: "Modelling Malignant Growth in Drosophila"
15.00-17.00	Poster session with wine and cheese
19.00	Symposium party at Samppalinna restaurant

REGISTRATION AND POSTER INFORMATION

Registration by Friday, April 13th 2012

For registration, please visit our website at

<http://personalizedscience.blogspot.com/>

Poster abstracts by Friday, April 13th 2012

To e-mail: tubs-symposium@utu.fi

More information and abstract guidelines can be found on our website.

The symposium is organized by Ph.D.-students from the Turku Doctoral Programme of Biomedical Sciences. Registration is open to everyone.

Abstracts will be included in an abstract book. The best poster will be rewarded.

 Turun yliopisto
University of Turku

 Åbo Akademi University

